AN AESOP SOUND FABLE

THE MILL POND

By John Foster.

In the pond on Al's farm all the animals splash and have a good time. Al, inside his house, tries to enjoy his soup but a couple of mice toot an accompanyment to his gurgurlings. He throws his soup bowl at them and rushes out of the house.

Outside Al chases away the animals and thinks that he'd like a swim himself. Mice smear glue on the diving board and when the old man jumps, the glue holds him back. Up and down he springs until a bird clips the stretched glue and Al spleashes into the water.

As he swims away, Waffles the cat, floats along on a bass violin playing, "Sailing, Sailing, Over the Bounding Main."

AESOP SAYS:- " A GOLD FISH MUST LIVE A CLEAN LIFE".
